CHAPTER 1
THE WORLD GOD SAW
Long ago, the earth was beautiful, but people had turned away from God. They were careless, unkind, and forgetful of His ways. God looked down from Heaven and saw that the hearts of people were filled with wickedness.
But there was one man who loved God and walked in His ways. His name was Noah. Noah listened to God, obeyed Him, and taught his family to do the same.
1

CHAPTER 1

Noah: A Man Who Walked With God

Long before Noah built an ark, he was known for something even more important: the way he lived.

The Bible describes a world where violence and wrongdoing had become widespread. People were making choices that moved them farther away from God. But Noah was different.

Scripture says, “Noah was a righteous man, blameless among the people of his time, and he walked faithfully with God.” - Genesis 6:9

Noah was the son of Lamech and a descendant of Seth, the son of Adam and Eve. When Noah was born, his father believed his life would bring comfort to a world filled with difficult labor. His name became connected with the idea of rest and comfort.

Noah grew up, married, and became the father of three sons: Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

While the world around him changed, Noah continued walking with God. He was not chosen because he was the strongest man, the richest man, or the most powerful man. God saw his character. Noah listened. Noah trusted. Noah obeyed.

One day, God gave Noah an assignment that must have seemed impossible. He told him to build an enormous ark.

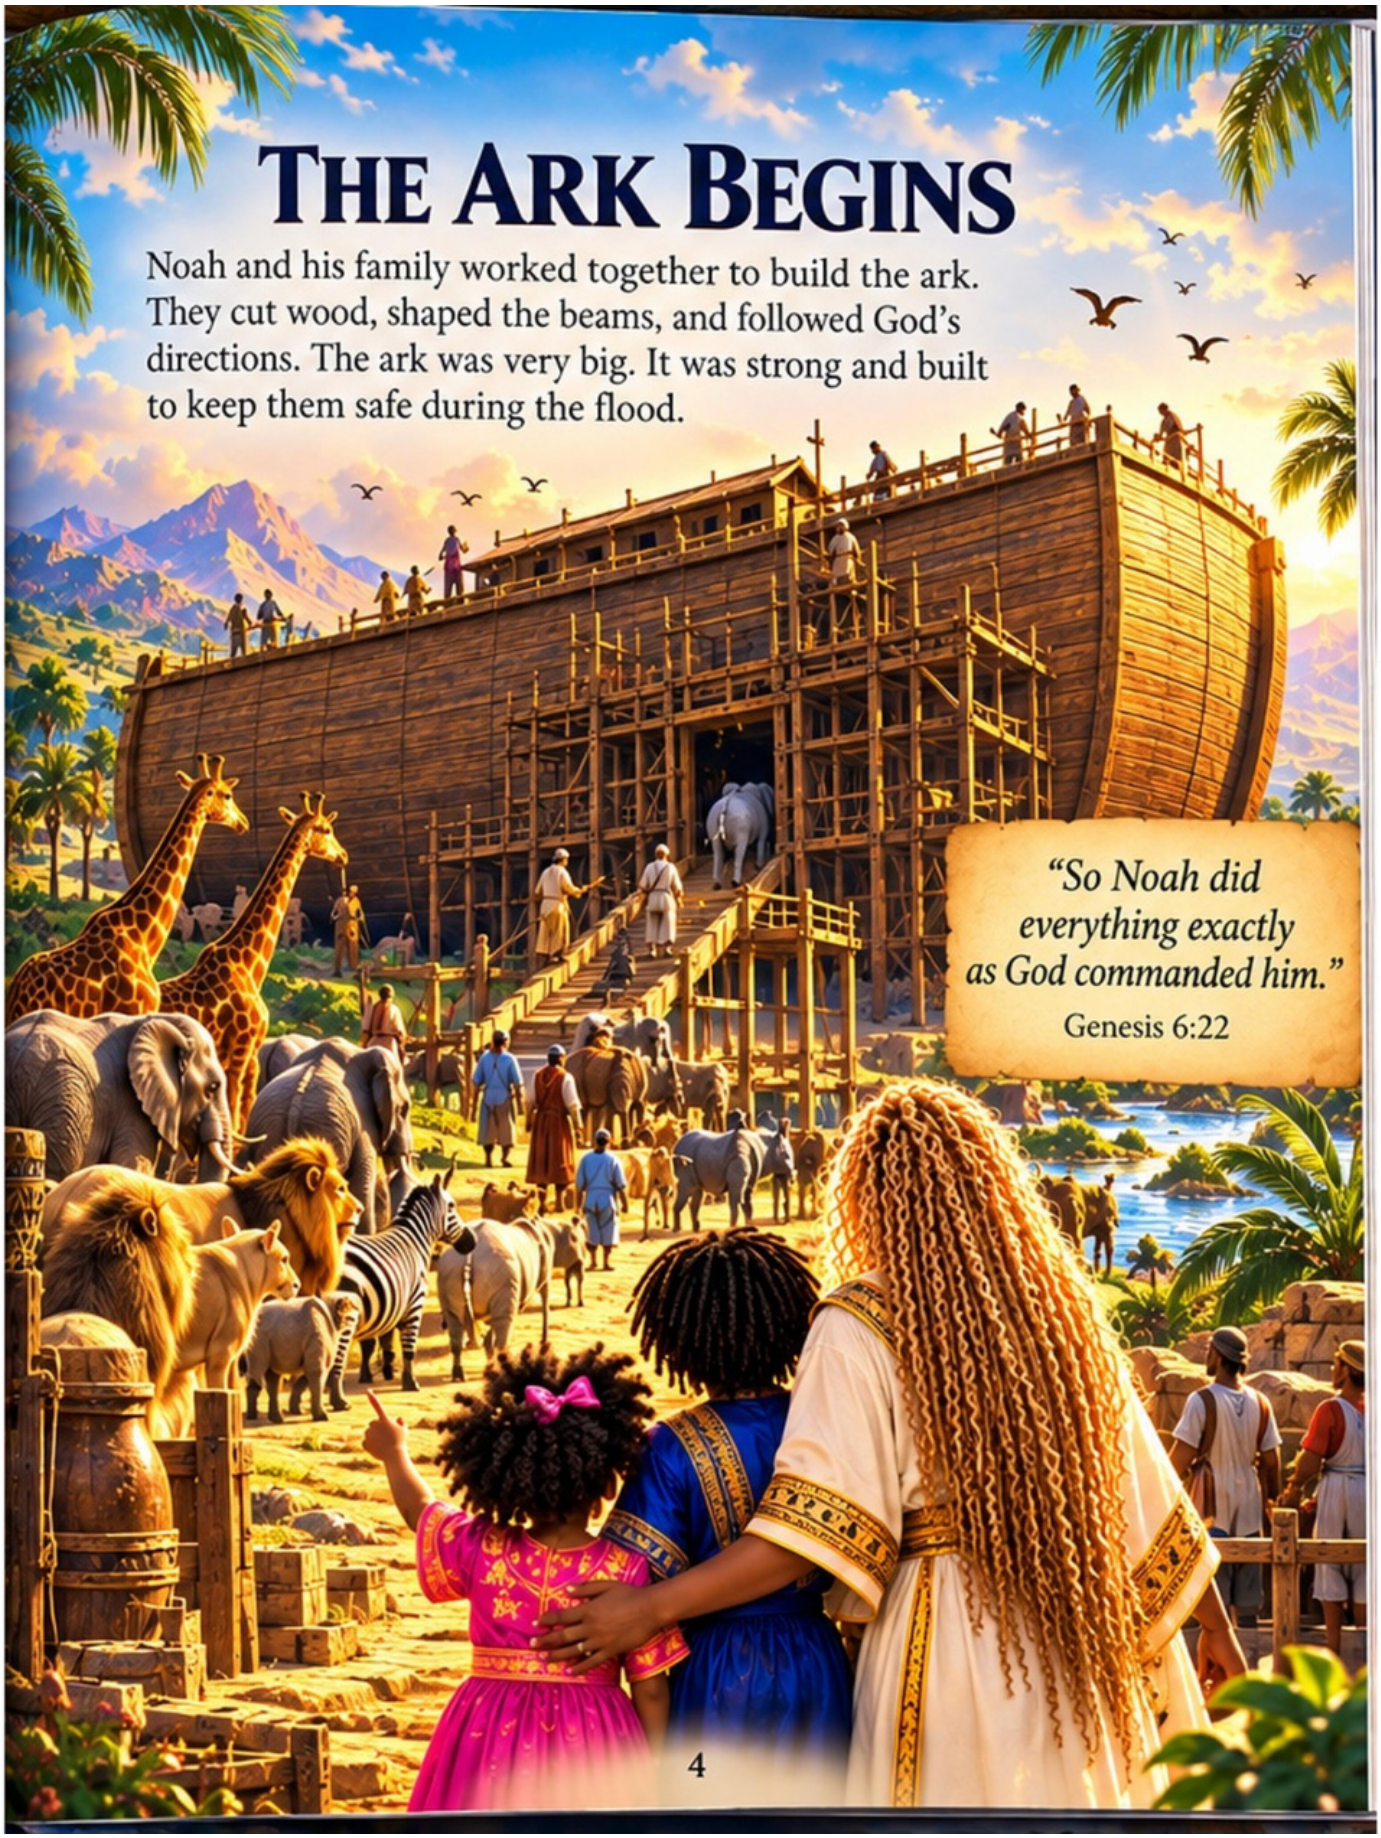

Joesiah looked at Grandma. “God chose Noah before Noah ever built the ark?”

Grandma smiled. “Exactly. The ark did not make Noah faithful. His faithfulness came first.”

Malani looked toward the enormous wooden structure beginning to rise in the distance. Grandma took both of their hands. “Always remember this: God may prepare your heart long before He reveals your assignment. That is why you must learn His Word, seek His truth, and remember who He created you to be.”

Know the Word. Seek the Truth. Remember who you are. Walk in the purpose God gave you.

Sometimes the greatest preparation for your purpose happens when nobody else is watching. READ IT FOR YOURSELF: Genesis 5:28–32 and Genesis 6:5–22.

THE ARK BEGINS
Noah and his family worked together to build the ark. They cut wood, shaped the beams, and followed God's directions. The ark was very big. It was strong and built to keep them safe during the flood.
"So Noah did everything exactly as God commanded him."
Genesis 6:22
4

CHAPTER 2

The Ark, Flood & Covenant

God told Noah that violence and corruption had filled the earth and that a great judgment was coming. But God also gave Noah a way forward.

He instructed Noah to build an enormous ark. Noah obeyed even though the assignment must have seemed impossible.

When the Ark was ready, the animals came according to God's instructions. Scripture gives more detail than simply saying "two of every animal": Noah was instructed to take seven pairs of every clean animal, one pair of animals that were not clean, and seven pairs of every kind of bird.

Then rain fell for forty days and forty nights. The waters rose, and the Ark carried Noah, his family, and the animals safely through the Flood.

When the waters finally receded, Noah stepped onto dry ground and built an altar to God. God established His covenant with Noah and his descendants, and the rainbow became the sign of that promise.

Joesiah looked at Grandma. "So the Ark was only one part of Noah's story?"

"Exactly," Grandma said. "Faith means trusting God enough to obey, even before you can see how everything will work out."

READ IT FOR YOURSELF: Genesis 6:11–22 and Genesis 7–9.

CHAPTER 7
HAM'S DESCENDANTS AND THE LANDS OF AFRICA

"Cush, Mizraim, Put, and Canaan were the sons of Ham."
Genesis 10:6

Ham had four sons: Cush, Mizraim, Put, and Canaan. Their families grew into different nations. Many of their people settled in Africa and nearby regions, building great cities, kingdoms, and cultures. The land was rich with resources, knowledge, and innovation.

HAM

CUSH
Nubia, Ethiopia and parts of East Africa. Known for strong kingdoms, gold, trade, and learning.

NUBIA (KUSH)

MIZRAIM
Egypt (Kemet) and surrounding lands. Known for advanced cities, architecture, writing, mathematics, and medicine.

EGYPT (KEMET)

PUT
North Africa (Libya and surrounding regions). Known for trade, metalwork, agriculture, and desert innovation.

LIBYA (PUT)

CANAAN
The land of Canaan (Levant region). Known for fertile land, cities, and trade routes. Canaan was cursed (Genesis 9:25), not Ham and not all of his descendants.

CHAPTER 3

Noah’s Sons & the Generations After the Flood

After the Flood, Noah’s family began a new chapter.

Noah had three sons: Shem. Ham. Japheth.

Genesis tells us that their families grew over generations and spread into different lands. Through their descendants, the Bible begins tracing families and nations that would appear throughout Scripture.

Joesiah studied the family tree. “So everybody had their own children, and then those children had children?”

“Exactly,” Grandma said. “That is how a family becomes generations.”

Malani pointed at the names. Grandma smiled. “Every name is part of a larger story.”

Then she pointed to one name in particular. Ham. “To understand where our journey goes next, we need to meet Ham’s sons.”

READ IT FOR YOURSELF: Genesis 9:18–19 and Genesis 10.

Noah's Sons and Their Families

After the flood, Noah had three sons. Their names were Shem, Ham, and Japheth. These three brothers and their families grew over many generations. The Bible tells us that many nations and peoples came from their descendants. Their families spread into different lands, built cities, and developed unique cultures and traditions.

"These are the descendants of Noah: Shem, Ham, and Japheth."
— Genesis 10:1

SHEM

His descendants formed many nations and peoples.

HAM

His descendants formed many nations and peoples.

JAPHETH

His descendants formed many nations and peoples.

CHAPTER 4

Ham’s Family: Cush, Mizraim, Put & Canaan

Genesis names four sons of Ham: Cush. Mizraim. Put. Canaan.

These names become important as the Bible describes peoples and lands of the ancient world.

Mizraim is the Hebrew biblical name associated with Egypt. Cush is commonly associated with lands south of Egypt, including areas connected with ancient Nubia and Kush.

Scholars continue to study exactly how every biblical name and ancient geographical region should be identified, so Grandma reminded the children of something important: “Sometimes the Bible tells us one thing, while history and archaeology help us investigate another. We should never turn an interpretation into a fact that Scripture itself does not state.”

Joesiah nodded. “So we have to know the difference between what the Bible actually says and what people say it means?”

“Exactly.” Grandma pointed again at the family tree. “And there is one name here that people have misunderstood for generations.” Canaan.

Ham's Sons and the Story of Canaan

One of Noah's sons, Ham, had four sons. Their names were Cush, Mizraim, Put, and Canaan.

"The sons of Ham were Cush, Mizraim, Put, and Canaan."
— Genesis 10:6

HAM

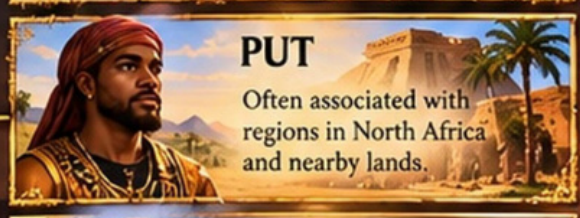

CUSH

Associated with a region south of Egypt (Nubia/Kush) and many peoples.

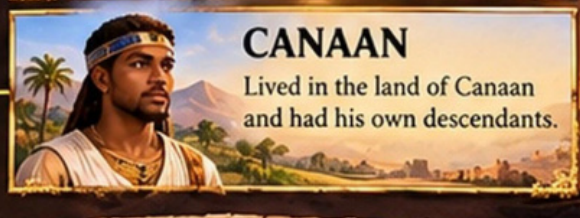

MIZRAIM

Associated with Egypt (Kemet) and its people.

PUT

Often associated with regions in North Africa and nearby lands.

CANAAN

Lived in the land of Canaan and had his own descendants.

What Happened with Canaan?

In Genesis 9, Noah saw something wrong and responded in anger. He did not curse Ham. The Bible specifically names Canaan, Ham's son:

"Cursed be Canaan; a servant of servants shall be be unto his brothers."
— Genesis 9:25

This means the curse was on Canaan, not Ham, and not on all of Ham's descendants.

How This Was Misused in History

Over time, some people took this verse out of context and wrongly used it to justify the enslavement and mistreatment of African people. They claimed the curse applied to all of Ham's descendants and used it as an excuse for racism, slavery, and oppression. This is not what the Bible says.

The curse was on Canaan, a specific person and his descendants. The Bible does not support the idea that an entire race of people was cursed to be slaves. That was a false teaching used by people for their own gain.

I WILL READ BEFORE I REPEAT.

CHAPTER 5

Canaan: Read What the Bible Actually Says

Joesiah looked concerned. “I heard Ham was cursed.”

Grandma opened her Bible. “That is exactly why we read Scripture for ourselves.”

After the Flood, Genesis records a troubling event involving Noah and Ham. When Noah later spoke about what had happened, the words recorded in Genesis 9:25 were: “Cursed be Canaan...”

Joesiah looked back at the family tree. “Canaan was Ham’s son.”

“Yes,” Grandma answered. “And notice something else. The verse does not say, ‘Cursed be Ham.’”

She continued: “It also does not say that Black people were cursed. It does not say Africans were cursed. And it does not say that the descendants of Ham were created to be slaves because of the color of their skin.”

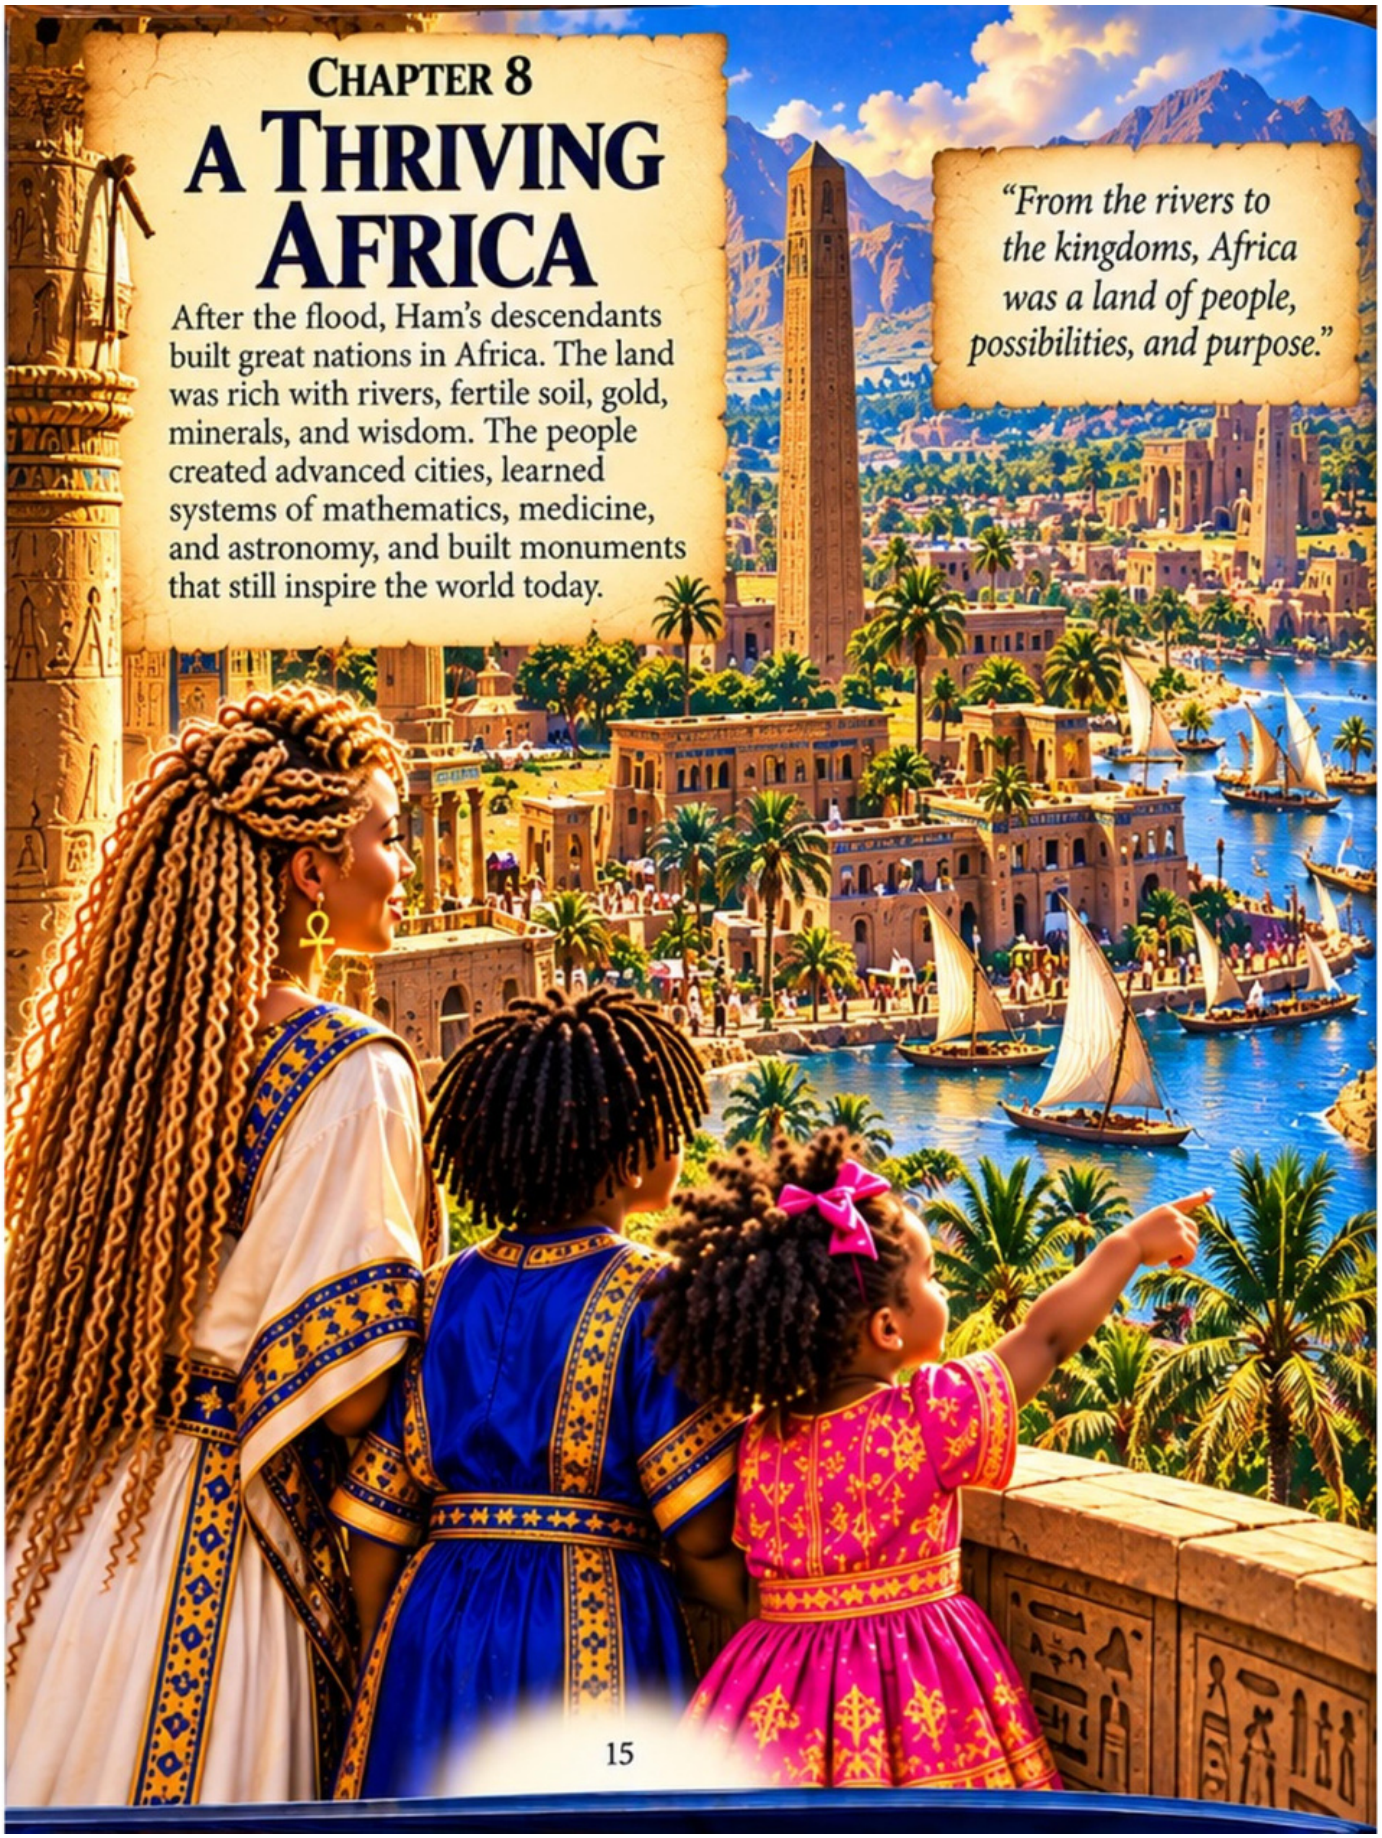

Centuries later, some people developed interpretations often called the “Curse of Ham.” These interpretations were used to portray African people as divinely destined for servitude and to defend racial slavery. But that racial interpretation is not what Genesis 9:25 says.

Joesiah became quiet. “So people used the Bible to justify something the verse didn’t actually say?”

“Some did,” Grandma answered. “And that is why knowing God’s Word for yourself matters.”

Before you repeat what someone tells you about your Bible, your history, or your people-read it, study it, and seek the truth for yourself. I WILL READ BEFORE I REPEAT.

Know the Word. Seek the Truth. Remember who you are. Walk in the purpose God gave you. TURN THE PAGE: The story of African people does not begin with slavery.

CHAPTER 8
A THRIVING AFRICA
After the flood, Ham's descendants built great nations in Africa. The land was rich with rivers, fertile soil, gold, minerals, and wisdom. The people created advanced cities, learned systems of mathematics, medicine, and astronomy, and built monuments that still inspire the world today.
"From the rivers to the kingdoms, Africa was a land of people, possibilities, and purpose."

CHAPTER 6

Africa: A Continent of Knowledge and Achievement

Grandma turned the page. Before Joesiah and Malani appeared a vast continent filled with rivers, fertile lands, cities, kingdoms, trade routes, families, farmers, artisans, builders and scholars. Africa.

Joesiah stared at the scene. “Grandma, I usually hear about Africa when people talk about slavery.”

Grandma looked at him. “Then we are going to begin much earlier.”

Africa’s history stretches back thousands of years. Long before the transatlantic slave trade, African peoples developed complex societies and civilizations with systems of government, agriculture, trade, architecture, craftsmanship and learning.

Along the Nile Valley, communities learned to use the river’s seasonal cycles to support agriculture. Builders constructed monuments that still stand thousands of years later. Artisans worked with stone, wood, metals and precious materials. Scribes recorded information. People studied the heavens, developed mathematical knowledge and practiced forms of medicine.

Malani pointed toward the boats on the river. “Boats!”

“Yes,” Grandma said. “People traveled and traded too.”

Joesiah looked across the busy scene. “So Africa had history long before slavery?”

Grandma smiled. “Thousands of years of it.”

Your history does not begin where someone else’s history book decided to start telling it.

READ AND DISCOVER: Study the histories of the Nile Valley, ancient Egypt, Nubia and Kush.

Chapter 9

Egypt (Kemet) A Land of Wisdom and Innovation

"Kemet was a land of knowledge, creativity, and abundance."

Ham's son Mizraim is connected to the land we know today as Egypt, also called Kemet by its people. Egypt was a thriving civilization with advanced cities, strong leaders, and a deep knowledge of mathematics, medicine, agriculture, engineering, and the stars. The people built temples, pyramids, and systems that still amaze the world today.

Amazing Architecture

The Egyptians built pyramids, temples, obelisks, and cities using advanced engineering and mathematics.

Engineering and Mathematics

They used accurate measurements, alignment with the stars, and complex systems to design buildings, roads, and irrigation.

Agriculture and The Nile

The Nile provided fertile land. The people grew grain, fruits, and vegetables, and used irrigation to feed their cities.

CHAPTER 7

Egypt (Kemet) and Nubia (Kush)

Their journey carried them into the Nile Valley.

Two of its great civilizations were ancient Egypt and Nubia, including the kingdom later known as Kush.

Ancient Egyptians called their land by names that included Kemet, while the Bible commonly refers to Egypt using the Hebrew name Mizraim.

To the south were the lands of Nubia and, during important periods of its history, the powerful Kingdom of Kush.

Joesiah remembered the family tree. “Mizraim was also one of Ham’s sons.”

“Yes,” Grandma answered. “Genesis uses that name in Ham’s genealogy, and the same Hebrew term is used for Egypt. But we have to be careful.”

“Why?”

“Because a biblical genealogy and the archaeological history of an entire civilization are not exactly the same kind of evidence. We can study how they relate without pretending we know more than the evidence tells us.”

Egyptian civilization developed over thousands of years. Its people built cities, temples and monumental structures. They developed hieroglyphic writing, organized government, extensive agriculture and far-reaching trade networks.

They used mathematics and geometry in practical life and construction. Egyptian medical writings preserve observations about illnesses, injuries and treatments.

South of Egypt, Nubian societies also developed powerful kingdoms and trading centers. Kush became especially influential. Kushite rulers eventually controlled Egypt during its 25th Dynasty, and Nubian builders constructed their own pyramids, temples and royal centers.

Joesiah looked at Grandma. “So Egypt wasn’t the only great civilization here?”

“Not at all.”

Chapter 10
A Thriving Civilization

Egypt (Kemet) and the lands of Cush (Nubia) were centers of learning, trade, and culture. The people were skilled in many areas, and they shared knowledge across Africa and the world.

"Their wisdom and creativity blessed many nations."

Trade and Resources

Egypt traded gold, copper, iron, stone, grain, linen, papyrus, and more. Goods traveled by land and by sea to Africa, the Middle East, and beyond.

Skilled Artisans

Artisans carved stone, built ships, made jewelry, crafted furniture, wove cloth, and created beautiful art.

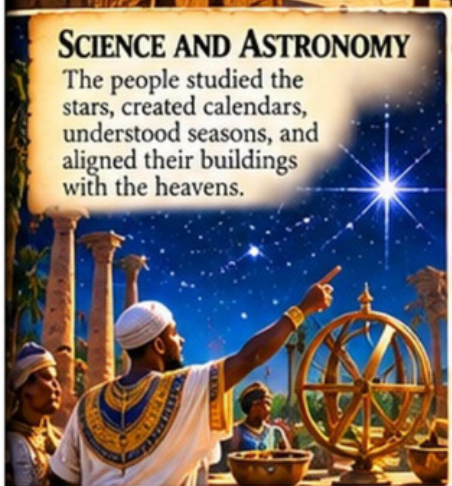

Writing and Learning

Scribes used a writing system with symbols called hieroglyphs. They recorded knowledge about history, science, math, medicine, and government.

Science and Astronomy

The people studied the stars, created calendars, understood seasons, and aligned their buildings with the heavens.

Medicine and Healing

They used herbs, natural remedies, and advanced medical knowledge to care for the people.

Culture and Community

The people celebrated with music, dance, art, and festivals. Families, farmers, priests, and leaders all played a part in a strong and thriving society.

Nubia (Kush) — A Powerful Kingdom

Cush, another son of Ham, was the land of Nubia. It had strong kingdoms, wealth, gold, and great cities. Nubia and Egypt shared culture, trade, and knowledge for many generations.

CHAPTER 8

Before Joseph Arrived

Grandma led the children through a bustling reconstruction of ancient life.

Farmers worked near the Nile. Boats transported people and goods. Craftspeople created pottery, jewelry and tools. Scribes recorded information. Builders planned enormous structures. Markets were filled with activity. Children learned from their families and communities.

“This is important,” Grandma told them. “When we reach Joseph’s story, I don’t want you imagining that he arrived in an empty or undeveloped land.”

Joseph entered Egypt, a civilization with established rulers, agriculture, cities, administration, trade, religion, architecture and systems for storing and distributing resources.

That matters because understanding the world surrounding a Bible story can help us understand the story itself.

Joesiah looked toward a great Egyptian city in the distance. “So now we’re going to meet Joseph?”

Grandma nodded. “But first, remember what you’ve learned.”

Know the Word. Seek the Truth. Remember who you are. Walk in the purpose God gave you.

TURN THE PAGE: Joseph’s journey began in betrayal and slavery. But his story would not end there.

CHAPTER 11
JOSEPH COMES TO EGYPT
Joseph was the son of Jacob, one of the twelve sons of Israel. His brothers were jealous of him and sold him into slavery. He was taken to Egypt and sold to an official in Pharaoh's house. Joseph entered a land that was powerful, advanced, and full of knowledge.
"God allowed everything that happened to Joseph to position him for a greater purpose."
Genesis 37:28, 36
THE JOURNEY
Joseph was taken by traders through desert lands until they arrived in Egypt. He saw large cities, tall temples, and a people with great skill and organization.
A NEW WORLD
Egypt was a land of large cities, skilled workers, scribes, priests, farmers, and traders from many nations. It was rich in resources and filled with knowledge, art, engineering, and learning.
19

CHAPTER 9

Joseph Comes to Egypt

Many generations had passed since Noah.

Through the family line of Shem came Abraham, then Isaac, then Jacob. Jacob had twelve sons, and one of them was Joseph.

Joseph's brothers became jealous of him. Their jealousy eventually led to betrayal. They sold Joseph, and he was taken away from his home. His journey carried him into Egypt.

Joesiah looked at Grandma. "So Joseph didn't choose to go there?"

"No," Grandma answered. "Joseph entered Egypt as an enslaved young man. What happened to him was painful and unjust."

Malani reached for Grandma's hand. "But God had not forgotten Joseph," Grandma continued.

Joseph entered a civilization that had existed long before his arrival. Egypt already had rulers, cities, agriculture, trade, craftsmen, administrators and systems of government.

Joseph had lost his freedom. He had been separated from his family. He could not see what his future held. But his story was not finished.

LESSON FOR US: A painful chapter does not have to become the ending of your story.
READ IT FOR YOURSELF: Genesis 37 and Genesis 39:1.

Chapter 12
Joseph Rises in Egypt

Even though Joseph entered Egypt as a slave, he served faithfully. God gave him wisdom, and Joseph learned the language, the culture, and the skills of the Egyptians.

"The Lord was with Joseph, and he became a successful man. Everything he did, the Lord made to prosper."

Genesis 39:2-3

A Faithful Servant

Joseph worked in Pharaoh's house. He was honest, skilled, and trusted with responsibility.

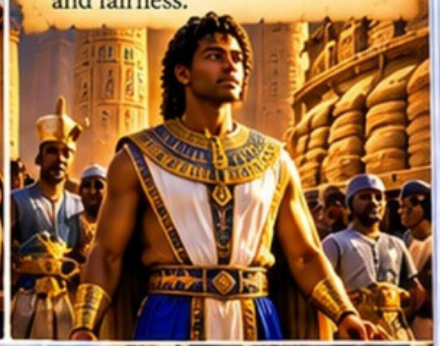

God Gave Wisdom

Joseph understood dreams. Pharaoh had troubling dreams, and no one could explain them, but Joseph, with God's wisdom, gave the meaning.

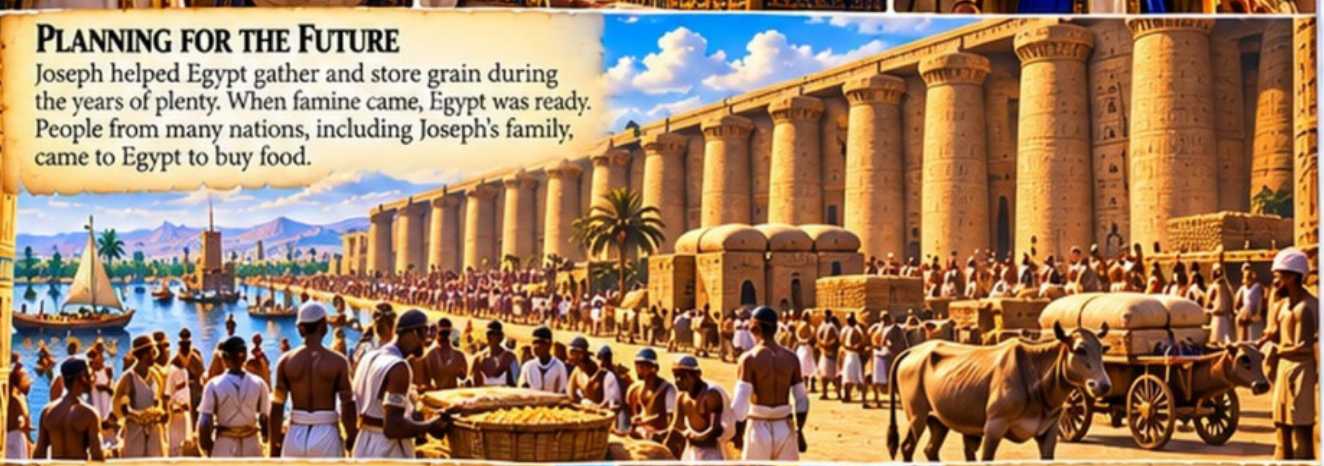

Promoted to Lead

Pharaoh placed Joseph over all of Egypt to prepare for the seven years of famine. Joseph organized the storage of grain and led the people with wisdom and fairness.

Planning for the Future

Joseph helped Egypt gather and store grain during the years of plenty. When famine came, Egypt was ready. People from many nations, including Joseph's family, came to Egypt to buy food.

A Greater Purpose

What his brothers meant for harm, God used for good. Joseph's journey brought his family to Egypt and helped save many people's lives.

Lessons for Us

Joesiah and Malani learned that hard times can be part of a greater plan. With faith, integrity, and wisdom, we can overcome challenges and be a blessing to others, just like Joseph.

CHAPTER 10

From Servant to Prisoner

In Egypt, Joseph was sold to Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh. Joseph worked faithfully, and Potiphar placed him in charge of his household.

But trouble came again. After Joseph rejected the advances of Potiphar's wife, she falsely accused him. Joseph was sent to prison.

Joesiah frowned. "He did the right thing and still got punished?"

"Yes," Grandma said. "Doing what is right does not mean life will always be easy."

But even in prison, Joseph continued to serve faithfully. There he met two officials from Pharaoh's household who had troubling dreams.

Joseph told them that interpretations belonged to God, and he explained what their dreams meant.

Later, Pharaoh himself began having dreams that no one around him could explain. One of the officials finally remembered Joseph.

Joseph was brought out of prison and taken before Pharaoh. His circumstances were about to change.

READ IT FOR YOURSELF: Genesis 39–41.

Chapter 15
Joseph Rises to Power
Wisdom, Planning, and Provision

Through his ability to interpret dreams, work ethic, and God's wisdom, Joseph rose from prison to the right hand of Pharaoh. Pharaoh recognized that Joseph had a special gift from God, and he placed him in charge of all of Egypt.

"Then Pharaoh said to Joseph, 'Since God has shown you all this, there is no one so discerning and wise as you.'"
Genesis 41:39

Pharaoh's Dreams

Pharaoh had two troubling dreams: seven healthy cows eaten by seven thin cows, and seven full heads of grain eaten by seven thin heads. No one could explain them, but Joseph knew that God gave him the understanding.

Joseph Gives The Answer

Joseph explained that the dreams meant seven years of abundance would be followed by seven years of famine. He advised Pharaoh to store grain during the years of plenty to prepare for the years of need.

A Divine Appointment

Pharaoh placed Joseph in charge of the entire land of Egypt. He gave him authority to oversee the storage of grain, the people, and the resources of the nation.

Seven Years of Plenty

Joseph organized the harvest, collected grain from across Egypt, and stored it in large granaries. The people worked together, and Egypt became well prepared.

Granaries for the Future

Huge storage houses were built throughout the land. Egypt stored enough grain to feed its people and many surrounding nations.

23

CHAPTER 11

Joseph Rises to Leadership

Pharaoh described his dreams to Joseph.

Joseph explained that the dreams carried a warning. Egypt would experience seven years of great abundance, followed by seven years of severe famine.

Joseph did more than interpret the dreams. He recommended preparing during the years of abundance by storing grain for the difficult years ahead.

Pharaoh recognized Joseph's wisdom. He placed Joseph in authority over his house and gave him great responsibility throughout Egypt, while Pharaoh remained on the throne.

Joesiah's eyes widened. "He went from being enslaved to being trusted with that much responsibility?"

"Yes," Grandma answered. "But notice something important. Joseph's story wasn't only about gaining a position. His position gave him an opportunity to serve."

During the years of abundance, grain was gathered and stored. Then the famine came. Because preparations had been made, food was available.

Purpose is not only about where God takes you. It is also about what you do when you get there.

READ IT FOR YOURSELF: Genesis 41.

CHAPTER 17
WHAT WE LEARNED
OUR HISTORY, OUR STRENGTH, OUR FUTURE

We learned that Africa was a land of people, creativity, knowledge, and purpose. The descendants of Ham, especially Cush and Mizraim, built great civilizations like Kemet (Egypt) and Nubia. They created cities, temples, science, medicine, and systems that still inspire the world today. Joseph entered Egypt and went from slave to a position of power because of wisdom, faith, and character. His story connects our African roots, the family of Israel, and God's greater plan.

"Our history is not a story of weakness, it is a story of strength, wisdom, and survival. When we know where we come from, we walk in purpose."

I WILL READ BEFORE I REPEAT.

KEY LESSONS FROM PART 1

- Africa was advanced, not primitive.
- Kemet (Egypt) and Nubia were centers of knowledge, science, and trade.
- Joseph's story shows the power of character, faith, and wisdom.
- Our history is connected, and it still matters today.
- I WILL READ BEFORE I REPEAT.

25

CHAPTER 12

A Family Reunited in Egypt

The famine extended beyond Egypt. Back in Canaan, Jacob and his family also needed food.

Eventually, Joseph's brothers traveled to Egypt to buy grain. They stood before Joseph without realizing who he was.

Joesiah whispered, "What did Joseph do?"

Joseph eventually revealed his identity. His brothers were terrified. But Joseph chose reconciliation instead of revenge.

He recognized that although people had intended evil against him, God had brought good from his circumstances and used his position to preserve lives.

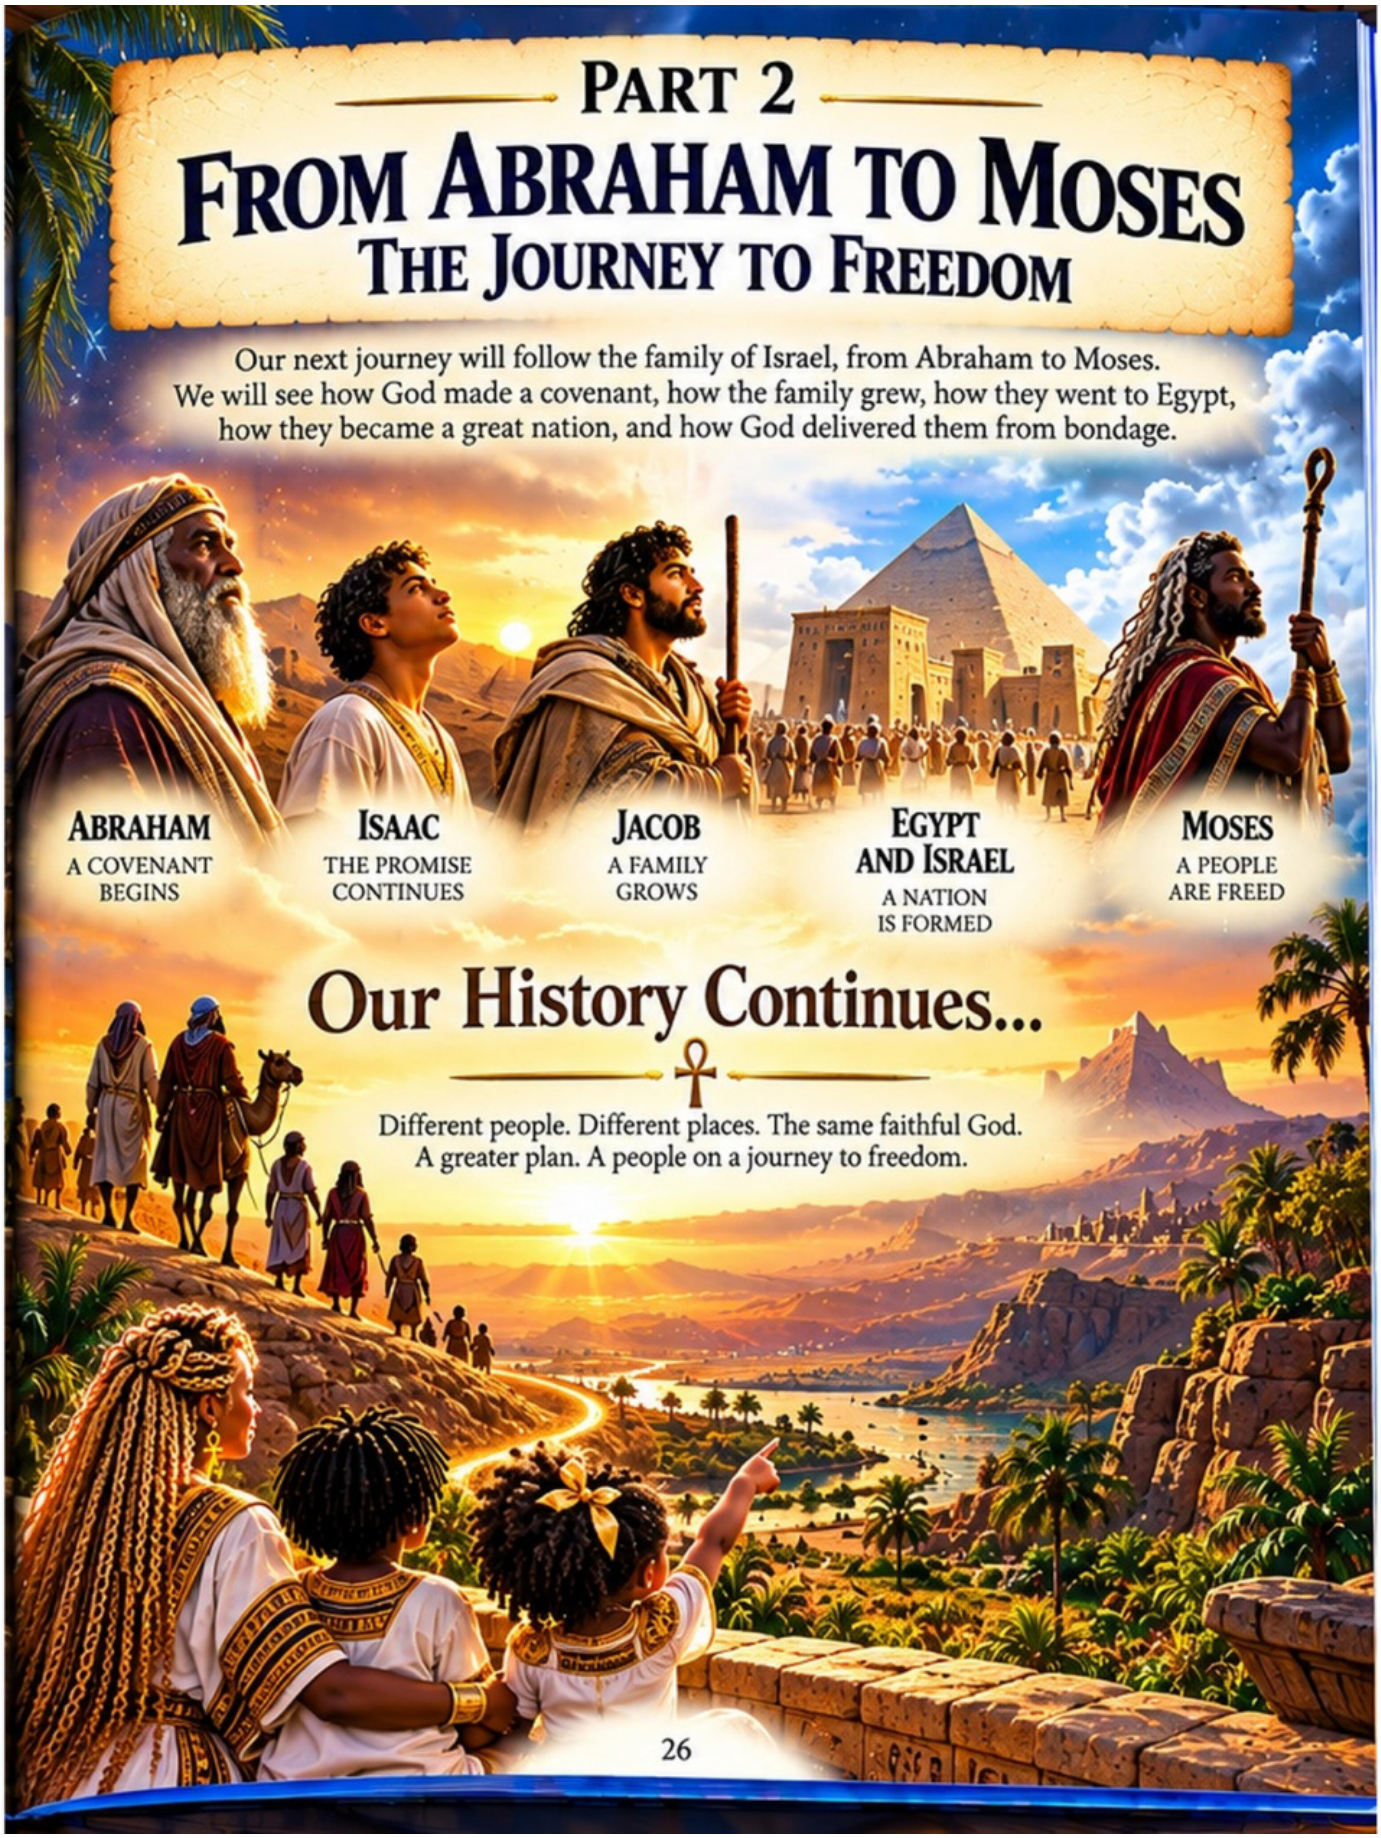

Joseph's father, Jacob, and his household eventually came to Egypt. The family settled there. They grew. Their children had children. And their descendants became increasingly numerous.

But generations passed. Joseph died. The Pharaoh who had known Joseph was gone.

Eventually, Scripture tells us: "Then a new king, to whom Joseph meant nothing, came to power in Egypt." - Exodus 1:8

Joesiah looked at Grandma. "That doesn't sound good."

Grandma shook her head. "It wasn't." She closed the Bible gently. "But that is another part of our journey."

PART 2
FROM ABRAHAM TO MOSES
THE JOURNEY TO FREEDOM
Our next journey will follow the family of Israel, from Abraham to Moses.
We will see how God made a covenant, how the family grew, how they went to Egypt, how they became a great nation, and how God delivered them from bondage.
ABRAHAM
A COVENANT BEGINS
ISAAC
THE PROMISE CONTINUES
JACOB
A FAMILY GROWS
EGYPT AND ISRAEL
A NATION IS FORMED
MOSES
A PEOPLE ARE FREED
Our History Continues...
Different people. Different places. The same faithful God.
A greater plan. A people on a journey to freedom.
26

CHAPTER 13

What We Learned

Grandma sat between Joesiah and Malani. They had traveled through generations of history.

They had learned about Noah and his sons. They had followed Ham's family line through Cush, Mizraim, Put and Canaan.

They had discovered what Genesis actually says about Canaan and why Scripture should never be twisted to justify racism or oppression.

They had explored African civilizations whose histories stretch back thousands of years.

And they had followed Joseph into Egypt-from betrayal and enslavement to responsibility, preparation, forgiveness and reunion.

Grandma looked at them. "Never be afraid to ask questions. Faith does not require you to stop learning."

Know the Word. Seek the Truth. Remember who you are. Walk in the purpose God gave you.

Joesiah smiled. "And before I repeat something about my Bible, my history, or my people..." Grandma waited. Joesiah finished: "I WILL READ BEFORE I REPEAT." Malani smiled. "Read!" Grandma laughed and hugged them both.

CHAPTER 14

Our History Continues…

Jacob’s descendants remained in Egypt.

Generations passed. Their numbers increased.

Then a new Pharaoh arose who did not know Joseph. Fear replaced welcome. Freedom would eventually become bondage.

And among those descendants, a baby would be born whose life would change their story.

His name was Moses.

Joesiah looked at Grandma. “Are we going there next?”

Grandma smiled. “We are.”
